1. Source is employed as interpreter (in Russian and Ukrainian) with "Goetenverket" in Gothenburg, Sweden. As such he has much to do with Soviet inspectors, engineers and technicians stationed there. At the present the Soviet group consists of :

No 201
V. SOKOLOV, aged 35, ~~chief~~ inspector;

17 Jan. 1919 in USSR
A. NOSOVSKIY, aged 45, Ukrainian, inspector, chief of the Soviet Technicians group in UDEWALA his superior is SOKOLOV; married, his wife went recently to Kiev with their son vacationing or on visit and stayed there for several weeks; made remarks severely critical of USSR

A. LOPATA, aged 30, Ukrainian, electrician;

V. BYKOV, engineer, Russian;

V. PYZH, aged 35, Ukrainian; - no previous ident

B. SPIKHIN, Russian;

V. BEHMA, aged 50, Ukrainian, Captain;

Vitali KOZAK, Ukrainian, from Zhytomir (Ukr SSR), together with his wife and son.

According to the Source they are under strict orders not to fraternize with foreigners and subjected to "proper discipline". They are rather reserved, cautious, and suspicious in their contacts with foreigners and usually prefer to listen instead of talk. Nevertheless, Source was asked many questions by Soviet Ukrainians about life in the West, Ukrainians abroad and told them all he knew about Ukrainian emigration in positive terms. Some of Sovs were very keenly interested in what their compatriots were doing in the West, and were quite impressed.

Mid-October 1964 Source was given some literature for distribution among Sovs and will act according to instructions given to him by our man in Sweden.

10 October 1964

2. On 2 Oct 1964 Source was witness to the following "incident" of A. NOSOVSKYI, "chief" of M/S 265 Krimskiye Gory which was handed over on that date at UDEWALA (where it has been built) by a Swedish-Soviet commission of Goetewerket :

After a trial run of Krimskiye Gory from and to UDEWALA, Source who came as interpreter together with the Swedish-Soviet Commission from Gothenburg, participated afterwards in the celebration aboard the ship.

During the celebration, NOSOVSKYI - deadly drunk, in presence of some Swedes, Source, his friend (also an emigre), and a deadly drunk Soviet sailor, in the course of heated "debate" with Source and his friend, suddenly got up, picked up the Soviet flag from the table and shouted: "You escaped from this damned flag and live comfortably! You have no notion what this flag means for human beings! This flag destroyed my parents in deportation!" He cursed and then continued: "It (the flag) chained me too to this wall and I would risk my death daring getting ~~rid~~ away from it".

Source and his friend were quite frightened by N'S expressions and tried to calm him down. Source went to his cabin and NOSOVSKYI was left with Source's friend. According to the latter after the Source left, the Soviet sailor (a former boxer) who was dozing in the corner, seized NOSOVSKYI by waistline and brought him to his cabin.

Next day NOSOVSKYI was somewhat worried and asked who and what heard him talking last night. After the explanation of Source, he thought he was lucky no one else was there.

Source does not exclude the possibility that N. might be willing to eventually remain for good in the West and he will "keep it in mind".
